Puerto Rican Birth Certificates

The purpose of this Alert is to inform Hospitals, Client Representatives, Facilitated Enrollers and Community Based Organizations that the Puerto Rican legislature-passed Law 191 to invalidate all Puerto Rican birth certificates issued prior to July 1, 2010. However, on June 28, 2010, the Puerto Rican government approved an amendment that extends the validity of all Puerto Rican birth certificates until September 30, 2010. This extension provides a transition period to allow those persons born in Puerto Rico to seek an updated document while the current one is still valid.

Beginning October 1, 2010, while Puerto Rican birth certificates issued prior to July 1, 2010 will no longer be able to be used to prove U.S. citizenship, they may continue to be submitted with Medicaid/Family Health Plus applications. The New York State Department of Health (NYSDOH) will perform a back-end match with the Social Security Administration (SSA) to verify birth information. A positive match will serve as an acceptable alternative to the submission of both original identity and citizenship documents. Medicaid applications will continue to be processed and will not be held pending while awaiting the results of the match. Only if the matching process proves unsuccessful, will the consumer be contacted for further documentation. Cases for consumers whose birth cannot be verified through the back-end match and who fail to respond to requests/fail to provide alternative acceptable documents will be closed.

A valid birth certificate may be required for other purposes including providing original documentation of birth information should the SSA citizenship match not be successful, as well as applying for other public benefits.

All organizations are encouraged to assist Puerto Rican born consumers in applying for new birth certificate on or after July 1, 2010. The New York State Department of Health has prepared the directions to be used in assisting Puerto Rican born consumers in obtaining valid replacement originals of their original certificate. They are attached. We have also included copies of the birth certificate application form in both English and Spanish.

Passports for those born in Puerto Rico are unaffected by the new birth certificate process and can continue to be used as primary verification of citizenship and identity for Medicaid.
